The skateboard brand SUPREME, founded by James Jebbia in 1994, has since grown to an internationally recognized symbol of quality, integrity, style, and in-the-know brand when it comes to youth culture. Now considered one of the classic New York brands, its roots are as heavily entrenched in skateboard culture as the roots of Montana-Cans are embedded in graffiti. The brand prides itself on making quintessential products such as skateboards, clothes, and accessories, that are not over manufactured. Without even trying, over the years their already sold through product ranges have become collectible, sort after, and valued by customers and supporters the world over.
